

University of Pittsburgh
Department of Physics and Astronomy

The Department of Physics and Astronomy at the University of Pittsburgh is currently seeking qualified applicants for a non-tenure-stream faculty position at the rank of Lecturer, pending budgetary approval. This position is outside of the tenure stream. The successful candidate will teach a variety of undergraduate courses, but primarily introductory, large enrollment, lecture-demonstration courses including those taken by non-science majors. The duties associated with this position would include preparation of course materials, teaching smaller recitation classes, training and supervising graduate students and teaching assistants, and academic program assessment. The candidate must possess a Ph.D. in Physics or Astronomy. Teaching experience is essential. Good communication and writing skills are required. Familiarity with current research on learning and teaching is desirable. The appointment can begin with the fall term of 2018 (August 27, 2018) or thereafter.

To ensure full consideration, complete applications should be received by February 1, 2018. However, applications will be accepted until the positions are filled. Applicants can apply online at: <https://facultysearch.as.pitt.edu/apply/index/MjE3>. Candidates should submit a letter of application, CV, and teaching statement and at least three letters of reference. For each reference, you will have the opportunity to input a personal email address or an email address generated through Interfolio's Online Application Delivery. In both cases, an email notification will be sent to the designated address with instructions about uploading the letters to our system. The University of Pittsburgh is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer and values equality of opportunity, human dignity and diversity. EEO/AA/M/F/Vets/Disabled.
